As part of their 5th Anniversary Celebration, employees of the Puerto Rico Convention Center (PRCC) were challenged to take an iconic picture of the emblematic structure located in Miramar. The result was a fantastic variety of photographs from unimaginable and hidden angles as seen by the people who work there every day.

“We are thrilled with the quality of the entries,” said PRCC Acting General Manager Blarys Segarra. “These photographs represent not only their talent but the love and respect they all have for their jobs and for what this convention center represents for the island. It also allows others to take a closer look at the heart of the convention center, all from an insider’s point of view.”

Segarra explained that the pictures expose unusual angles and impacting views of the PRCC that could go unnoticed for visitors.

A panel of experts on the communications industry evaluated the entries. The judges were respected journalist and acclaimed columnist Ismael Torres; photography professor Angelica Romero (Sacred Heart University) and experienced free lance photographer, Gerry González.

Vivian Santana, from the Events Department, won First Prize; Ariana Valerio, also from the Events Department, won Second Prize; and sharing the Third Prize were Gianni Agostini, from the Sales & Marketing Department; and Events Senior Manager, Marissa Gasparolli. The People’s Choice Award went to Tomás Bustamante.

The photographs are part of the Puerto Rico Convention Center’s Art Gallery in the Executive Floor Hall. They can be seen Mondays to Fridays from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
